

Africa Youth in Digital Health Network (YiDHN)

Innovate. Inspire. Impact.

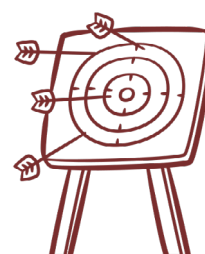

WHO WE ARE

The Africa Youth in Digital Health Network (YiDHN) is a Pan-African initiative under the Africa CDC Youth Program dedicated to empowering, connecting, and supporting young professionals, innovators, and advocates in digital health. YiDHN serves as a collaborative platform for skill development, innovation, and policy engagement, ensuring that African youth are actively involved in shaping the future of digital health on the continent.

OUR VISION

Empower African youth to drive and shape digitally enabled, equitable and resilient healthcare systems in Africa.

OUR MISSION

Build a network of young Africans and harness their potential in digital health to contribute to healthier and ...

THE YIDHN WORKS TO ACHIEVE FOUR OBJECTIVES:

EMPOWER LEADERSHIP

Empower African youth to lead in digital health innovation by building essential skills, fostering mentorship connections, and providing training on Africa-specific digital health frameworks.

PROMOTE PARTICIPATION

Promote youth involvement in digital health governance across Africa by fostering participation in policy discussions, creating a centralized information hub on regulatory guidelines, and advocating for youth representation in decision-making bodies.

GROW INNOVATION

Support sustainable growth of youth-led digital health startups across Africa by ensuring access to funding, creating a repository of resources, and connecting entrepreneurs with investors.

FACILITATE COLLABORATION

Facilitate collaboration among relevant stakeholders to strengthen partnerships, align resources, and drive impactful digital health solutions across Africa.
